As a particular example of current atmospheric observations, we present observations of the HDO (3-2) line in the context of Voyager OVRO in 1997. The integrated HDO emission in the high-resolution (2.3") map shows that emission peaks are significantly more water vapor emission in the context of sublimation of water deposits in the north pole (at the northern summer solstice). At the same time, this also suggests...